well acquainted with the facts has stated, in his incresting letter to the Times, that when the Resident informed Sir Salar Jung of the fall of Delh and if Sir Salar Jung had ever thought of seizing an opportunity to desert the English Government, he had ample means of using his earlier information for the purpose. But he never wavered. He had made up his mind that the cause of England was the cause of good government. He knew view, and could not bear to throw away a golden occasion of winning a He was exposed to constant menaces and much danger, but he showed glish Government found it safe to employ it, and derived considerable behave conquered it back again and all the rest of India as well. But Sir arrival in England of the prime Minister of the Nizam service to England by his administration of the dominions of the Nizam in recent years. It has mande good order everywhere prevail. Roads, tanks, wells, irrigation works a good police and schools, are among the benefits he wells, irrigation works a good police and schools, are among the benefits he success of all, and bas made list follow-matrice are that he has been throughout in the right, and that in the pursuance of the policy which he started lie all their best hopes for the future. Naturally, like very one who tries to do good in a semi-barbarous country, he has provoked bitter personal hostificity and in 1868 an attempt we made to assessment himpersonal throughly and in 1868 an attempt was rande to assessment himgenerally held; and his escape was welcomed with delight by people of all Glasses. Nor is it only that he has made the Decean one of the most flourishing parts of India. He has helped us to solve the difficult problem of how we are to treat the independent principalities of which we have lately heard so much. Mr. Hunter records, in his Life of Lord Mayo, the anxiety which this problem caused to the new Governor-General. He determined on fixed and definite principles. After long consideration Lord Mayo came and administering the territory through British officers, or a native regency, Mayo had the strongest possible sense of the personal side of government. and he laid down as one of the duties of a Vicerov that he should be the their best to govern well in their own dominions, not only directly for the sake of those they governed but indirectly for the sake of those governed by native chiefs. When it was seen that an honest endeavour was being est honors were to be offered and the most cordial friendship was to be shown to those who had been paying England the most welcome of tributes work,s What Lord Mayo wished to see done for the improvement of all Native States has been done in the amplest manner by Sir Salar Jung for the territories of the Nizam. He has abundantly earned the respect, the friedship, and the honor which Lord Mayo proposed should be the reward of the wise administration of the Native States; and Englishman, who give Sir Salar Jung the reception he has merited, will have the satisfaction of at once welcoming a benefactor and of knowing that they are helping to carry out a leading principle of Imperial policy. - Saturday Review.

THE MAIL, 3rd July 1876.

Sir Salar Jung had an interview with the Queen at Windsor, on Thursday, and joined the Royal dinner party in the evening.